

Coffee Break

Question on Software or Operating system.

Add [My Computer] and other missing icons to your desktop

If you've gotten used to working with older versions of Windows, XP's somewhat bare desktop setup can come as a bit of a shock. Where's 'My Computer?' That, plus 'My Network Places' the link to Internet Explorer and most importantly 'My Documents' are all missing from the desktop by default.

Fortunately, rectifying this is extremely easy:

Right click on an open area of the desktop and click [Properties]

Click on [Desktop] tab then [Customize Desktop]

From this Window you can simply put checkmarks beside these common items to add them back to the desktop.

Click on [My Computer] and [My Documents] to place a tick in the small box.

Click [OK] to confirm.