

Coffee Break

Question on Software or Operating system.

User Tracking

User tracking system is a wasted system resource and it is not used by ordinary users of Windows XP. Only system administrators may use this information. Disable this user tracking feature to free up system resources and speed up Windows XP performance. The system disables customized features that require user tracking information, including personalized menus.

Turn off personalized menus

Windows will normally move recently used items to the top of the menu and hiding items that have not been used recently. If you enable this setting, the system does not personalize menus. All menu items appear and remain in standard order.

